The High Nature Centre, East Portlemouth, Salcombe, TQ8 8PN
Thursday 6th (9am) to Thursday 20th (6pm) June 2024

Thank you for your enquiry about our Permaculture Design Course. Please complete this booking form as fully as possible. Further details such as directions, and what to bring, will be sent to you with confirmation of your booking.

Introduction

This course is for anyone who believes that we need to find ways to care for ourselves, for each other and for the Earth. If you are looking to make a significant change in your life, then this will almost certainly help you. The design course provides you with a broad introduction to the applications of permaculture in a number of different situations.

Although permaculture is most commonly thought about in connection with gardening and farming, its principles, ethics and design methods can be adapted and used in each individual's own work, interests and home to bring about a more harmonious and sustainable lifestyle. Permaculture offers a perspective on all aspects of building a sustainable future. It encourages us to use our individual skills, knowledge and interests, whilst drawing on traditional wisdom, science and our innate ability to observe and learn from the world around us.

What you will learn

- What permaculture is and why it is particularly relevant to us today.
- How we can make cities and the countryside healthier and more productive places to be.
- How working with nature can help us to meet many of our needs, including food, water, and shelter. Some specifics:
  - Some simple techniques for caring for soil, water and wildlife.
  - Techniques for building eco-friendly and low impact homes and how to design them into the landscape to minimise both pollution and unnecessary work.
  - What really constitutes 'appropriate' technology.
- The permaculture design process, that guides you in getting from where you are to where you want to be, including:
  - Some effective, low-tech surveying tools to analyse and map a site.
  - How to make best use of space and slope in land-based permaculture designs.
  - How to apply the design process to both land-based and non-land-based systems.
- How to create win-win situations rather than trade-offs.
- How to achieve bountiful yields with a minimum of effort.
- And much, much more!

Ecological Design Solutions for a Sustainable Future

During the second half of the course you will be guided in groups through the design process, applying what you have learned, to produce an original design on the site. You will be able to take this experience away and apply it in creating further designs for your own home or garden.

The Teachers

Aranya Dip.Perm.Des. first came across permaculture back in the late 1980s, being fortunate enough to meet one of the first designers working in this country. He found the subject full of common sense ideas that immediately inspired him to apply the principles in his own life. During the 1990's he regularly lectured and debated on environmental issues in schools and colleges and in the media for a national campaigning group over a period of five years. He completed the 72 hour Design Course in 1996, and the Diploma in Applied Permaculture Design in 2003, after which he began to teach. This he discovered was something that made his heart sing, so he made it his main focus. Since 2004 he has taught over 100 two-week design courses, something he has no intention of stopping, feeling it a privilege to have the opportunity to teach "something that can make a real difference in all our lives".

Aranya has been involved with the Permaculture Association in a variety of ways since 2000. He is excited about new ways in which permaculture thinking can help us, developing new courses using its principles to help design, amongst other things, for optimising our health, and creating ethical livelihoods. His popular book Permaculture Design: a step-by-step Guide was published in Spring 2012 and has already been reprinted a number of times. He's currently involved in co-ordinating a number of other projects, including writing a second book, about a subject he's especially fascinated by – the application of natural patterns and systems thinking in Permaculture Design.

Klaudia van Gool Dip.Perm.Des. has had an interest in growing things as long as she can remember and has incorporated Permaculture ideas for the last twenty, since accidentally picking up Bill Mollison's book in the library. She did the Sustainable Land Use and Permaculture Design Certificate at Ragmans Lane Farm with Patrick Whitefield in 2006 and completed her Diploma in Permaculture Design in January 2009. She has a degree in Environmental Science from University of Plymouth and has worked advising and training businesses on environmental improvements. The last few years she has become increasingly interested in wild foods and she is learning beekeeping. Klaudia's website: www.klaudia.co.uk

The Venue

The High Nature Centre is an 'Experimental Biotope' for eco-tourism, ecological learning and regenerative culture. It offers unique glamping holidays set atop a coastal plateau overlooking a beautiful stretch of the South Devon Coast. Located in an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, it's just a few minutes' walk from the South West Coast Path. Founded in 2009, the Centre continues to be an ever-evolving ecologically and socially inclusive project focusing on eco-glamping, permaculture, organic food growing, well-being, nature connection, rewilding, and social outreach.

For those who are especially interested, the High Nature Centre offers an extra emphasis on social permaculture and on food production in a challenging environment.

Attendance

We commit to delivering to you a diverse and comprehensive, positive educational experience. We ask you to commit to attending the whole course. We do however understand that exceptional circumstances may prevent this, in which case we ask that you notify us before the course starts of any time you anticipate being absent.

Course culture

We don't expect any previous knowledge and recognise that everyone has their own unique skills, knowledge and areas of interest to bring to the course. We use group work, discussions, videos, slide shows, observation, guided walks and practical activities as learning methods. We also visit projects where permaculture theory is being put into action.

Design courses are not just about imparting information, but also about showing you how to use it and feeling confident to do so. Empowerment is the essence of the course. We use practical and theoretical teaching methods to create a fun, lively and inclusive course. The course culminates in the main design activity that helps to consolidate all of the learning and shows you how to take permaculture back into your own home, life and community.

Accreditation

Attendance of most sessions, plus participation in the design activity is necessary for accreditation. On successful completion of the course, you will be awarded the British Permaculture Association's internationally-recognised 'Certificate in Permaculture Design'.

Dates and timings

The course will run from 9.00am on Thursday 6th June to 6.00pm on Thursday 20th. A final shared meal and celebration will follow that evening and staying overnight until Friday morning is included. Sessions will be in four blocks of three days with a day off between each block - on Sunday 9th, Thursday 13th and Monday 17th. The site offers plenty of opportunities to enjoy that extra time off. Sessions will start each day at 9.00am and continue on until the evening meal around 6.30pm. We also have a light session many evenings, often a slideshow or video, to reinforce the day's learning. We'll have 75 minutes for both lunch and dinner, plus tea breaks each morning and afternoon.

Pre-course reading

We don't assume that you have done any previous reading before the beginning of the course. However, if you'd like to do some reading beforehand, in addition to my own book, I really like Graham Bell's books; 'The Permaculture Way' and 'The Permaculture Garden'. There's enough in them to give you a good sense of what permaculture is about, but not too much to be daunting! You could ask your local library to get them in for you or buy them from the Permaculture Market.

We look forward to meeting you on the course.

Best wishes,
